++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Most places dry, sunny. Cooler with light winds.

Today:
Noticeably chillier than recent days, but a dry, bright day with a lot of autumnal sunshine for most of the country. Cloudier, breezy over Northern Isles with a few showers.

Tonight:
Clear and cold for the majority of the mainland, a few showers around the Northern Isles and more cloud for the Hebrides and west coasts.

Saturday:
A bright and sunny start for Eastern Scotland but cloud in the west spreading across with strengthening winds. Rain for Lochaber and Argyll from mid afternoon reaching Grampian by dusk.

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Early rain will mostly clear Sunday with some brightness. Then an unsettled spell, milder conditions but windy with periods of rain to start the new week, best conditions in east.
